

JULY

July brings the celebration of the anniversary of our nation's independence. I was born overseas to American parents and feel so incredibly blessed to be an American. Having lived in various countries I realize just how lucky I am to live in this country. So many people are running to live here because of the freedoms offered to us by our military and government yet they get here and want to change things and continue to live like they were still in the home they escaped.

Don't get me wrong, This country, as they say, is a "Melting Pot" of all the immigrants who have traveled here legally and worked to become citizens. And their contributions have made this beautiful nation of ours what it is today. I understand why so many people want to live here but if you do, please learn our language-English, respect our laws and come here legally. Living overseas, I had to learn the language of the country I was living in and because of that I am multilingual. America deserves the respect of her people. I hope when you all celebrate the 4th of July, you take the time to realize just how blessed you are to live here. "God bless America, Land that I love. God bless America, my home sweet home." I for one will be one who sings this song with a quiver in my voice and will also stand proudly for our National Anthem with my right hand on my heart.

Happy Birthday America!

God bless,

Amy
